THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION 50X1-HUM

1. The rear echelon command of each division has a veterinary section which is in charge of the veterinary clinic of the respective division, and of the veterinary departments within the regiments. The chiefs of the veterinary sections of the divisions are, at the same time, in charge of the veterinary clinics which are usually located at divisional headquarters.
2. The divisional clinics treat horses when the treatment requires more than fifteen days. If treatment is to last a month or more, the horse is sent to the Army veterinary hospital. Regimental clinics, on the other hand, take care of short-term treatments.
3. Captain Hazim Mahic is chief of the veterinary section of 38 Serbian Division; Captain Slavko Jovanovic is chief of the veterinary section of 20 Hercegovina Division; and Captain Miralem Dzinic is chief of the veterinary section of a division with headquarters in Banja Luka.
4. Every Yugoslav Army regiment has a graduate veterinarian. It often happens that the most able veterinarians are attached to regiments, and that they are usually individuals who do not enjoy the confidence of the Communist Party. Coveted posts in Army hospitals and divisional clinics are reserved for Communist Party members.
